Incorrect flight data led to disruption at UK airports

London: The UK's air traffic control chief has said that incorrect flight data was the cause of the massive disruption that affected thousands of passengers stuck in planes and at airports as hundreds of flights to and from the country were cancelled. Martin Rolfe, CEO, National Air Traffic Services, which had faced the technical issue that triggered the chaos on Monday, said an initial investigation had found the failure could not be interpreted by its systems. He also reiterated the government's previous statement that it was not caused by a cyber attack. PT

Global Fund bags deal to cut HIV treatment price

Geneva: The Global Fund announced on Wednesday a deal with generic pharmaceutical manufacturers to slash the price of a cutting-edge HIV drug, in a move it said would save lives. The Global Fund said the agreement would make it possible to provide the pill known as TLD for under $45 per person per year. AFP

RJio takes 'auction only permissible way' line in spectrum for satcom case

LEGAL BACKING. Cites ex-SC judge's opinion that any other mode of assignment is violative of Article 14

Ayushi Kar
Mumbai

Former Supreme Court judge Justice KSP Radhakrishnan has given a legal opinion that auctioning of spectrum is the only permissible mode of assigning spectrum for satellite-based communication services.

Radhakrishnan held that there is no discernible difference between satellite and terrestrial spectrum; therefore, it is incorrect to seek a distinct policy for satellite airwaves.

Reliance Jio has submitted Radhakrishnan's views to the telecom regulator, which is holding a consultation on the matter. Many satellite companies are seeking entry into the Indian market and they want the government to allocate satellite spectrum; Reliance Jio, on the other hand, wants the Centre to auction

OVER TO TRAI. RJio has submitted Radhakrishnan's views to TRAI, and wants the Centre to auction the spectrum the spectrum instead. In 2012, the Supreme Court delivered a landmark judgment related to the 2G spectrum allotment scandal, canceling over 122 2G licenses. It held that auction was the only way to assign spectrum. Radhakrishnan was part of a two-member SC bench that examined the petitions of seven telecom companies, the Central government, and former minister A Raja, which sought a review of the 2G verdict. The second member, GS Singhvi, was also part of the bench that delivered the 2G judgment.

In his 16-page legal opinion, Radhakrishnan held that while the Supreme Court left open the possibility that natural resources can, at certain times, be alienated (allocated) by different means (besides auctions), in cases where allocation of resources is for commercial pursuits by private companies, any method other than auction may be arbitrary and in violation of Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

2G SCAM
Arguing that the 2G judgment does not apply to satellite spectrum, Radhakrishnan states that it needs to be established that the allocation of spectrum to private parties is not for commercial pursuits or profit maximisation.

Radhakrishnan also argues that there is no discernible difference between satellite spectrum and terrestrial spectrum, as they inhabit the same spectral wavelengths; and satellite spectrum is being used to supplement or expand an operator's terrestrial network.

Now, Go First faces trouble on maintenance front

Forum Gandhi
New Delhi

Insolvency-bound Go First is in fresh trouble with a Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) audit finding gaps in aircraft maintenance across major airports. Sources said several maintenance work orders were open, and this could pose trouble for the airline as well as its lessors in the near future.

According to a source, aircraft "were not preserved properly and continuously", as technicians and engineers were not reporting to work for the last two or three weeks. "On Monday and Tuesday, the DGCA carried out maintenance check for Go First's aircraft at major airports, including its home base in Mumbai. This comes after the airline faced a financial and human capital crunch. The airline had not paid salaries for the months of June and July to its employees, following which it saw employees putting in papers," according to an industry official.

The DGCA, Resolution Professional, and the company did not respond to businessline's queries. An industry source explained: "Aircraft need to be under continuous maintenance... any gap in maintenance may require extensive work, including a thorough inspection for the aircraft to be brought back under maintenance coverage. This could be very costly."

In case of a gap in maintenance it may require repeated inspection of the engine for a certain period, or even a shop visit for bearing inspection, which could cost millions of dollars.

"There is huge exposure to lessors even if aircraft are de-registered as they need to determine gaps in maintenance and pay for corrective action," said the industry source.

EMERGENCY FUNDS
On the other hand, the airline had been facing an acute cash crunch, for which they had sought a ₹100 crore emergency funding from bankers, which has been approved.

Of the said amount, the company needs to set aside ₹3 crore for repairs and maintenance and ₹37 crore to pay salaries. Employee health insurance of ground support staff is around ₹1.75 crore, and TDS and provident fund dues are ₹20.50 crore.

Earlier, the Delhi High Court had asked the Resolution Professional to maintain the aircraft and engines, while it allowed lessors to inspect the aircraft. According to recent reports, lessors produced photographs stating that several parts were swapped or missing from aircraft.

One of the lessors have filed a contempt petition in the Delhi High Court against the Resolution Professional for not providing a status report of aircraft and engines.

US Medicare price negotiation a powerful move to rein in healthcare costs, say experts

PT Jyothi Datta
Mumbai

US President Joe Biden AP

The Biden administration's decision to negotiate the prices of 10 drugs from the Medicare programme sends a powerful signal to governments across the world looking to rein in healthcare costs, say industry watchers.

"Today, Medicare has, for the first time, selected 10 drugs for negotiation. Seniors paid $3.4 billion in out-of-pocket costs for these drugs in 2022," said the US administration on Tuesday.

The mood has changed across the world, with governments trying to tackle the ever-rising cost of healthcare, and companies looking to keep up their sustainability quotient through environmental, social and governance features, said a pharma industry veteran, who did not want to be named.

The drugs listed for negotiation are top innovator drugs, and if negotiations do bring down costs for senior citizens, it opens the door for more to follow, he added.

The development may not impact generic drugmakers just yet, since these are innovator medicines, say analysts. But the concept of differential pricing could become a casualty, they add.

The negotiations could reduce the flexibility of innovator drug companies in providing drugs at reduced prices in other markets, said the pharma veteran. After the US, Europe and China are sought-after markets, and they also face pricing pressures. So, India could see the benefits of a differential pricing coming under pressure, said the expert.

PRESCRIPTIONS

The list unveiled for negotiations were "common and costly prescriptions" that treat heart failure, blood clots, diabetes, arthritis, Crohn's disease and more, said US President Biden. And, this was in addition to reducing the cost of insulin to $35 a month for seniors on Medicare, he pointed out.

They included Jardiance (diabetes and heart failure); Eliquis (blood clots); Xarelto (clots and cardiac problems); Januvia (diabetes); Farxiga (diabetes/heart failure/chronic kidney disease); Entresto (heart failure); Enbrel (rheumatoid arthritis / psoriasis); Novolog / Flexpen / Pefill (diabetes); Imbruvica (blood cancer); and Stelara (Crohn's disease / psoriasis).

Chandrayaan lifts rakhi sales to all-time high this year

Sales estimated at ₹12,000 crore; focus on India-made rakhis with zero imports from China

Nameera Anjum
Aditi Kashyap
New Delhi

Indians across the globe are all geared up to celebrate Rakshabandhan over the next two days this year. The Confederation of All India Traders (CAIT) has estimated sales worth ₹12,000 crore for rakhis this year. "Chandrayaan Rakhi and G-20's Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam Rakhis are trending this season to commemorate the recent developments," said Praveen Khandelwal, Secretary General, CAIT.

According to CAIT, the rakhis have been made in India, and neither the rakhi nor rakhi material was imported from China. The sale value of FMCG items has been estimated to be around ₹5,000 crore.

PARADIGM SHIFT

The pandemic led to the shutting down of businesses, forcing traders to evolve out of traditional operations and adapt new-age technology and platforms.

"Since Covid hit, we started selling rakhis on our own B2B e-commerce website. From using WhatsApp for Business to keep in touch with customers to leveraging Facebook, Instagram and Youtube to get more inbound queries, we do it all. "Apart from this, all top B2C e-commerce gifting companies are among our customers — Blink It, Flipkart and Amazon bestsellers, The Gift Studio, Archies, FNP, FlowerAura," said Kamal Kishore, Director at Shree Rakhi, the largest rakhi manufacturer in India. However, people's emotional connection with the festival has helped sales rebound after Covid. In 2019, sales were estimated at 3,500 crore. With a steady increment, it recorded a 7 per cent hike in 2022. It reflects better prospects for goods made domestically, according to CAIT.

"Rakhi is manufactured and assembled completely by hand. A lot of hard work is involved, and we manufacture all throughout the year. It's important to note that not only are we big proponents of Make In India, 95 per cent of the workforce are women artisans who are able to take on such work and bring in additional disposable income for their households," said Kishore. A group of women from Vikramgad in Maharashtra's Palghar district, craft eco-friendly bamboo rakhis. Centered around sustainability, the initiative creates opportunities for tribal women in remote areas. Bamboo Rakhis garnered PM's attention and found a mention in Mann Ki Baat. These rakhis come as an antidote to unemployment in tribal areas. They also provide work-from-home opportunities, which are more suited for remote areas.

Khadi Rakshasoot, which was launched in August in New Delhi, "empowers rural women who spin multiple threads on the charkha to create a natural product, devoid of chemical additives", said Manoj Kumar, Chairman, Khadi and Village Industries Commission.

SPOILT FOR CHOICE

A wide range of rakhis, such as Kosa Rakhi of Chhattisgarh; Jute Rakhi of Calcutta; Silk Rakhi of Mumbai; Khadi Rakhi made in Nagpur; Sanganeri Kala Rakhi in Jaipur; Bamboo Rakhi made of tribal items in Jharkhand; Tea Leaf Rakhi in Assam; Dates Rakhi in Kerala; Pearl Rakhi in Kanpur; Banarasi Cloth Rakhi in Varanasi; and Madhubani and Maithili Art Rakhi of Bihar, have found a place in the market this time around.

Hexaware plans up to 120% variable pay for employees

Press Trust of India
Mumbai

Software services firm Hexaware Technologies, on Wednesday, announced up to 120 per cent variable pay to its more than 28,500 employees. The payout ranges from 100 per cent to all employees and up to 120 per cent for high performers who have shown exceptional performance for two years, said the city-based company.

Of its 28,500 employees, as many as 20,000 are based in India. Despite the prevailing economic volatility where companies have put hiring on hold, Hexaware has committed to onboard around 6,000 experienced professionals this year, it said.

While the entire software industry is facing high attrition levels, the company claimed that its employee retention has seen a significant leap, jumping from 68 per cent in 2021 to 73 per cent in 2022.
